migration in the 21st century is one of the pre eminent issues of our present historical moment a phenomenon that has acquired new urgency with accelerating climate change civil wars and growing economic scarcities refugees and migrants in contemporary film art and media consists of eleven essays that explore how artists have imaginatively engaged with this monumental human drama examining a range of alternative modes of representation that provide striking new takes on the experiences of these precarious populations covering prominent art works by ai weiwei and richard mosse and extending the spectrum of representation to refugee film workshops on the island of lésbos as well as virtual reality installations of alejandro g iñárritu and works by balkan and turkish directors such as melisa Önel the chapters included here focus on the power of aesthetic engagement to illuminate the stories of refugees and migrants in ways that overturn journalistic clichés there is currently a vigorous debate in film studies and related disciplines about the extent to which scientific paradigms like evolutionary psychology and neuroscience can explain the cinema and other artforms this debate tends to devolve into extreme positions with many film scholars and other humanists insisting that science has little or no role to play in the study of the arts while a minority contends that it is always needed to fully account for cultural phenomena like film malcolm turvey advocates for a more moderate position he argues that while the sciences can explain much about film and the other arts there is much about these phenomena that only humanistic methods can account for he thereby mounts a trenchant defence of the purpose and value of humanistic explanation one that nevertheless acknowledges and welcomes the legitimate contribution of the sciences to the study of the arts between the 1890s and the 1930s movie going became an established feature of everyday life across america movies constituted an enormous visual data bank and changed the way artist and public alike interpreted images this book explores modern painting as a response to and an appropriation of the aesthetic possibilities pried open by cinema from its invention until the outbreak of world war ii when both the art world and the film industry changed substantially artists were watching movies filmmakers studied fine arts the membrane between media was porous allowing for fluid exchange each chapter focuses on a suite of films and paintings broken down into facets and then reassembled to elucidate the distinctive art film nexus at successive historic moments in the mid 1950s c p snow began his campaign against the two cultures the debilitating divide as he saw it between traditional literary intellectual culture and the culture of the sciences urging in its place a third culture which would draw upon and integrate the resources of disciplines spanning the natural and social sciences the arts and the humanities murray smith argues that with the ever increasing influence of evolutionary theory and neuroscience and the pervasive presence of digital technologies snow s challenge is more relevant than ever working out how the scientific and everyday images of the world hang together is no simple matter in film art and the third culture smith explores this question in relation to the art technology and science of film in particular and to the world of the arts and aesthetic activity more generally in the first part of his book smith explores the general strategies and principles necessary to build a third cultural or naturalized approach to film and art one that roots itself in an appreciation of scientific knowledge and method smith then goes on to focus on the role of emotion in film and the other arts as an extended experiment in the third cultural integration of ideas on emotion spanning the arts humanities and sciences while acknowledging that not all of the questions we ask are scientific in nature smith contends that we cannot disregard the insights wrought by taking a naturalized approach to the aesthetics of film and the other arts more than half a century since its initial publication this deceptively compact book remains among the most incisive analyses of the formal and perceptual dynamics of cinema no one who cares about film can afford to remain ignorant of its insights and wisdom as digital technology fundamentally alters motion pictures the lessons of film as art commend themselves as excellent insurance against reinventing the wheel in the new media landscape and hailing it as progress edward dimendberg author of film noir and the spaces of modernity after more than eight decades rudolph arnheim s small book of film theory remains one of the essential works in defining film art understanding film less as reproducing the world than as opening up new possibilities for formal play and unexpected imagery anyone serious about film whether scholar filmmaker or simply a lover of cinema must take arnheim seriously tom gunning author of the films of fritz lang and d w griffith and the origins of american narrative film an aesthetic theory based on the formal limitations of the medium arnheim s film as art always provokes students in an age of few limits and less formality and they argue and engage this classic text with unparalleled passion written in the wake of sound s transformation of the cinema arnheim s essays are not only central to understanding a major historical moment in theoretical debates about what constitutes the essence of film but also are a must read for anyone seeking a lucid detailed and rigorous argument about how works of art emerge from expressive constraint as much as expressive freedom vivian sobchack author of carnal thoughts

the american television commercial has an aesthetic and historical dynamic linking it directly to cinematic and media cultures consuming images film art and the american television commercial establishes the complex vitality of the television commercial both as a short film and as an art form through close and comparative readings the book examines the influence of hollywood film styles on the television commercial and the resulting influence of the television commercial on hollywood exploring an intertwined aesthetic and technical relationship analysing key commercials over the decades that feature new technologies and film aesthetics that were subsequently adopted by feature filmmakers the book establishes the television commercial as a vital form of film art focusing on intermediality the material image situates film within questions of representation familiar from the other arts what is meant by figuring the real how is the real suggested by visual metaphors and what is its relation to illusion how is the spectator figured as entering the text and how does the image enter our world the film s spectator is integral to these concerns cognitive and phenomenological approaches to perception alike claim that spectatorial affect is real even when it is film that produces it central to the staging of intermediality in film tableaux moments in film also figure prominently in the book films by scorsese greenaway wenders and kubrick are seen to address painterly photographic and digital images in relation to effects of the real hitchcock s films are examined with regard to modernist and realist effects in painting chapters on fassbinder and haneke analyze the significance of tableau for the body in pain while a final chapter on horror film explores the literalism of psychopathic tableau here too art and the body images and the real are juxtaposed and entwined in a set of relations now thoroughly revised and updated the book discusses recent breakthroughs in media technology including such exciting advances as video discs and cassettes two way television satellites cable and much more of view elucidates an expanded network of connections between avant garde film and wider culture in this bold and original work a l rees identifies three key terms field frame and interval and charts their use by filmmakers and theorists such as dziga vertov sergei eisenstein bruce baillie maya deren malcolm le grice and werner nekes from the 1920s through to the present day a seminal voice in film culture rees left the incomplete manuscript for this book on his death and simon payne has subsequently carefully prepared the book for publication fields of view is an important work that establishes a unique perspective on experimental film provided by publisher films provide valuable spaces for aesthetic experimentation and analysis for cinema s openness to other media has always allowed it to expand its own in aesthetic spaces brigitt peucker shows that when painterly or theatrical conventions are appropriated by the medium of film the dissonant effects produced open it up to intermedial reflection and tell us a great deal about cinema itself the films studied in these chapters include those by abbas kiarostami alfred hitchcock michelangelo antonioni jean luc godard carl th dreyer peter greenaway rainer werner fassbinder ingmar bergman jacques rivette fritz lang f w murnau lars von trier spike jonze Éric rohmer lech majewski and others where two media are in evidence in these films there is usually a third and often theater mediates between film and painting aesthetic spaces interrogates issues of cinematic space and mise en scène from different but interconnected theoretical perspectives organizing its chapters around some of the formal principles space spectator frame color and lighting props décor and actor that shape films drawing on the older arts to renew cinema the films examined deploy paintings as material poussin and bruegel rembrandt hals and klimt and medieval illustrations and modernist abstractions are used to expand our notions of cinematic space peucker shows that when different media come together in film they create effects of dissonance out of which new modes of looking may arise in the footsteps of andre bazin this anthology of 15 original essays argues that the photographic origin of twentieth century cinema is anti anthropocentric well aware that the twentieth century stands out as the only period in history with its own photographic film record for posterity angela dalle vacche has convened international scholars at the sterling and francine clark art institute and asked them to rethink the history and theory of the cinema as a new model for the museum of the future by exploring the art historical tropes of face and landscape and key areas of film studies such as early cinema soviet film theory documentary the avant garde and the newly born genre of the museum film this collection includes detailed discussions of installation art and close analyses of media relations which range from dance to painting to performance art thanks to the title of andre malraux s famous project film art new media museum without walls invites readers to reflect on the museum of the future where twentieth century cinema will play a pivotal role by interrogating the relation between art and science technology and nature from the side of photography in dialogue with digitalization vera dika explores the reuse of images plots and genres of film history from a broad range of critical perspectives examining works of art and film that resist the pull of the past dika provides an in depth analysis within a variety of media including performance photography punk film and examples from mainstream american and european cinema her study analyzes avant garde art work within the context of contemporary mainstream film practice as well as in relationship to their historical moment david bordwell and kristin thompson are two of america s preeminent film scholars you would be hard pressed to find a serious student of the cinema who hasn t spent at least a few hours huddled with their seminal introduction to the field film art now in its ninth edition or a cable television junkie unaware that the independent film channel sagely christened them the critics of the naughts since launching their blog observations on film art in 2006 the two have added web virtuosos to their growing list of accolades pitching unconventional long form pieces engaged with film artistry that have helped to redefine cinematic storytelling for a new age and audience minding movies presents a selection from over three hundred essays on genre movies art films animation and the business of hollywood that have graced bordwell and thompson s blog informal pieces conversational in tone but grounded in three decades of authoritative research the essays gathered here range from in depth analyses of individual films such as slumdog millionaire and inglourious basterds to adjustments of hollywood media claims and forays into cinematic humor for bordwell and thompson the most fruitful place to begin is how movies are made how they work and how they work on us written for film lovers these essays on topics ranging from borat to blockbusters and back again will delight current fans and gain new enthusiasts serious but not solemn vibrantly informative without condescension and above all illuminating reading minding movies offers ideas sure to set film lovers thinking and keep them returning to the silver screen for five decades no american filmmaker has been as prolific or as paradoxical as woody allen from play it again sam 1972 to midnight in paris 2011 and blue jasmine 2013 allen has produced an average of one film a year yet in many of these movies allen reveals a progressively skeptical attitude toward both the value of art and the cultural contributions of artists in this second edition peter j bailey extends his classic study to consider allen s work during the twenty first century he illuminates how the director s decision to leave new york to shoot in european cities such as london paris rome and barcelona has affected his craft he also explores allen s shift toward younger actors and interprets the evolving critical reaction to his films authoritatively demonstrating why the director s lifelong project of moviemaking remains endlessly deserving of careful attention
